

Preparing for your subject written assessment

Index

Course: Arabic

As part of your ITT interview, you will complete a written task to assess your subject knowledge. This task will include exam-type questions on various topics within your subject area. Part of the task will also assess your written English proficiency.

To support your preparation for this part of the interview, you may find it helpful to optionally review:

- The content and assessment objectives for your subject at GCSE level (click here).
- Questions from past exam papers for your subject at GCSE level, for example:
 - Question numbered 1 in this paper
 - Question numbered 10 in this paper

If you feel you would like to revise any subject knowledge prior to the written assessment, there are a wide variety of revision resources online (for example: Google 'GCSE Arabic revision').

Please note:

- The links to example questions provided above are not the questions you will answer on the day of your interview.
- The questions on the day may have a different format from the examples provided. The examples above are only intended to give you an idea of the level of subject knowledge required.
- It is not a requirement of your interview that you review these materials, and we will not ask whether you have reviewed them; they are intended solely as optional resources to help you feel prepared.

Course: Art & Design

As part of your ITT interview, you will complete a written task to assess your subject knowledge. This task will include exam-type questions on various topics within your subject area. Part of the task will also assess your written English proficiency.

To support your preparation for this part of the interview, you may find it helpful to optionally review:

- The content and assessment objectives for your subject at GCSE level (click here)
- The following question example:

Many artists, craftspeople and designers are inspired by natural forms: David Hockney depicted natural forms in many different styles. Emma Dibben creates illustrations and paintings of food inspired by her allotment. Karl Blossfeldt is well known for his precise images of plants and flowers. Robert Kushner's installation 'Scriptorium: Devout Exercises of the Heart' consists of hundreds of drawings and paintings of flowers and plants on old books.

Which artist or designer would you use as inspiration for a piece on 'Natural Forms'? Explain your choice of artist or designer and how their work has influenced you [10 marks].

If you feel you would like to revise any subject knowledge prior to the written assessment, there are a wide variety of revision resources online (for example: Google 'GCSE Art & Design revision').

Please note:

- The example question provided above is not the question you will answer on the day of your interview.
- The questions on the day may have a different format from the example provided. The example above is only intended to give you an idea of the level of subject knowledge required.
- It is not a requirement of your interview that you review these materials, and we will not ask whether you have reviewed them; they are intended solely as optional resources to help you feel prepared.

Course: Biology

As part of your ITT interview, you will complete a written task to assess your subject knowledge. This task will include exam-type questions on various topics within your subject area. Part of the task will also assess your written English proficiency.

To support your preparation for this part of the interview, you may find it helpful to optionally review:

- The content and assessment objectives for your subject at GCSE level: click here (page 9-19 for Biology)
- Questions from past exam papers for your subject at GCSE level, for example:
 - Questions numbered 02.4 and 02.9 in this paper
 - Questions numbered 02.5, 04.1, and 08.4 in this paper

If you feel you would like to revise any subject knowledge prior to the written assessment, there are a wide variety of revision resources online (for example: Google 'GCSE Biology revision').

Please note:

- The links to example questions provided above are not the questions you will answer on the day of your interview.
- The questions on the day may have a different format from the examples provided. The examples above are only intended to give you an idea of the level of subject knowledge required.
- It is not a requirement of your interview that you review these materials, and we will not ask whether you have reviewed them; they are intended solely as optional resources to help you feel prepared.

Course: Chemistry

As part of your ITT interview, you will complete a written task to assess your subject knowledge. This task will include exam-type questions on various topics within your subject area. Part of the task will also assess your written English proficiency.

To support your preparation for this part of the interview, you may find it helpful to optionally review:

- The content and assessment objectives for your subject at GCSE level: click here (pages 20–32 for Chemistry)
- Questions from past exam papers for your subject at GCSE level, for example:
 - Questions numbered 01.3, 01.4, 06.1, and 09.1 in this paper
 - Question numbered 03.1 in this paper

If you feel you would like to revise any subject knowledge prior to the written assessment, there are a wide variety of revision resources online (for example: Google 'GCSE Chemistry revision').

Please note:

- The links to example questions provided above are not the questions you will answer on the day of your interview.
- The questions on the day may have a different format from the examples provided. The examples above are only intended to give you an idea of the level of subject knowledge required.
- It is not a requirement of your interview that you review these materials, and we will not ask whether you have reviewed them; they are intended solely as optional resources to help you feel prepared.

Course: Computing

As part of your ITT interview, you will complete a written task to assess your subject knowledge. This task will include exam-type questions on various topics within your subject area. Part of the task will also assess your written English proficiency.

To support your preparation for this part of the interview, you may find it helpful to optionally review:

- The content and assessment objectives for your subject at GCSE level (click here).
- Questions from past exam papers for your subject at GCSE level, for example:
 - Questions numbered 6a, 6b, and 6c in this paper
 - Questions numbered 7a and 7b in this paper

If you feel you would like to revise any subject knowledge prior to the written assessment, there are a wide variety of revision resources online (for example: Google 'GCSE Computer Science revision').

Please note:

- The links to example questions provided above are not the questions you will answer on the day of your interview.
- The questions on the day may have a different format from the examples provided. The examples above are only intended to give you an idea of the level of subject knowledge required.
- It is not a requirement of your interview that you review these materials, and we will not ask whether you have reviewed them; they are intended solely as optional resources to help you feel prepared.

Course: Design & Technology

As part of your ITT interview, you will complete a written task to assess your subject knowledge. This task will include exam-type questions on various topics within your subject area. Part of the task will also assess your written English proficiency.

Design and Technology (D&T) encompasses both Food Technology and D&T which includes a variety of distinct material areas. You are expected to have a foundational understanding of the KS3 curriculum and will develop expertise in your chosen specialism at KS4.

To support your preparation for this part of the interview, you may find it helpful to optionally review:

- The KS3 programme of study to guide you in the scope of D&T (click here)
- The content and assessment objectives for your subject at GCSE level (click here)
- Questions from past exam papers for your subject at GCSE level, for example:
 - Questions numbered 11.1, 11.2, 12, 13, and 15 in this paper

If you feel you would like to revise any subject knowledge prior to the written assessment, there are a wide variety of revision resources online (for example: Google 'GCSE Design & Technology revision').

Please note:

- The example questions provided above are not the questions you will answer on the day of your interview.
- The questions on the day may have a different format from the examples provided. The examples above are only intended to give you an idea of the level of subject knowledge required.
- It is not a requirement of your interview that you review these materials, and we will not ask whether you have reviewed them; they are intended solely as optional resources to help you feel prepared.

Course: Drama

As part of your ITT interview, you will complete a written task to assess your subject knowledge. This task will include exam-type questions on various topics within your subject area. Part of the task will also assess your written English proficiency.

To support your preparation for this part of the interview, you may find it helpful to optionally review:

- The content and assessment objectives for your subject at GCSE level (click here).
- Questions from past exam papers for your subject at GCSE level, for example:
 - Questions numbered 05.2 and 05.3 in this paper

If you feel you would like to revise any subject knowledge prior to the written assessment, there are a wide variety of revision resources online (for example: Google 'GCSE Drama revision').

Please note:

- The example questions provided above are not the questions you will answer on the day of your interview.
- The questions on the day may have a different format from the examples provided. The examples above are only intended to give you an idea of the level of subject knowledge required.
- It is not a requirement of your interview that you review these materials, and we will not ask whether you have reviewed them; they are intended solely as optional resources to help you feel prepared.

Course: English

As part of your ITT interview, you will complete a written task to assess your subject knowledge of English language. This task will include exam-type questions on various topics within your subject area. Part of the task will also assess your written English proficiency.

To support your preparation for this part of the interview, you may find it helpful to optionally review:

- The content and assessment objectives for your subject at GCSE level (click here for English language)
- Questions from past exam papers or online teaching materials for your subject at GCSE level, for example:
 - Question 2 on page number 14 of this booklet
 - The following question example:

Identify the possible misconception(s) students may make when using apostrophes and commas, as in the following paragraph. How would you correct these misconceptions?

It was a quiet morning, and Tom walked through the forest, the sky was blue and the air was filled with the scent of pine tree's. Toms thoughts were scattered as he tried to focus on his path, but the ground was slippery and the leaves covered much of it. He could hear the distant sound of a rivers water rushing, and the tree's branches creaked in the wind. Tom didn't want to stop yet, but he knew he should be careful, the weather's unpredictability could make the journey dangerous. He had been walking for hours, and it felt like its going to rain soon. Tom wondered how much longer it would be before he reached the mountain's peak, which was still far in the distance.

If you feel you would like to revise any subject knowledge prior to the written assessment, there are a wide variety of revision resources online (for example: Google 'GCSE English language revision').

Please note:

- The example questions provided above are not the questions you will answer on the day of your interview.
- The questions on the day may have a different format from the examples provided. The examples above are only intended to give you an idea of the level of subject knowledge required.
- It is not a requirement of your interview that you review these materials, and we will not ask whether you have reviewed them; they are intended solely as optional resources to help you feel prepared.

Course: French

As part of your ITT interview, you will complete a written task to assess your subject knowledge. This task will include exam-type questions on various topics within your subject area. Part of the task will also assess your written English proficiency.

To support your preparation for this part of the interview, you may find it helpful to optionally review:

- The content and assessment objectives for your subject at GCSE level (click here).
- Questions from past exam papers for your subject at GCSE level, for example:
 - Questions numbered 01.2 and 03 in this paper
 - Question numbered 02.1 and 02.2 in this paper

If you feel you would like to revise any subject knowledge prior to the written assessment, there are a wide variety of revision resources online (for example: Google 'GCSE French revision').

Please note:

- The links to example questions provided above are not the questions you will answer on the day of your interview.
- The questions on the day may have a different format from the examples provided. The examples above are only intended to give you an idea of the level of subject knowledge required.
- It is not a requirement of your interview that you review these materials, and we will not ask whether you have reviewed them; they are intended solely as optional resources to help you feel prepared.

Course: Geography

As part of your ITT interview, you will complete a written task to assess your subject knowledge. This task will include exam-type questions on various topics within your subject area. Part of the task will also assess your written English proficiency.

To support your preparation for this part of the interview, you may find it helpful to optionally review:

- The content and assessment objectives for your subject at GCSE level (click here).
- Questions from past exam papers for your subject at GCSE level, for example:
 - Questions numbered 02.2, 02.4 and 02.5 in this paper

If you feel you would like to revise any subject knowledge prior to the written assessment, there are a wide variety of revision resources online (for example: Google 'GCSE Geography revision').

Please note:

- The example questions provided above are not the questions you will answer on the day of your interview.
- The questions on the day may have a different format from the examples provided. The examples above are only intended to give you an idea of the level of subject knowledge required.
- It is not a requirement of your interview that you review these materials, and we will not ask whether you have reviewed them; they are intended solely as optional resources to help you feel prepared.

Course: History

As part of your ITT interview, you will complete a written task to assess your subject knowledge. This task will include exam-type questions on various topics within your subject area. Part of the task will also assess your written English proficiency.

To support your preparation for this part of the interview, you may find it helpful to optionally review:

- The content and assessment objectives for your subject at GCSE level (click here).
- Questions from past exam papers for your subject at GCSE level, for example:
 - Questions numbered 1, 4 and 9 included in this link
 - Example question included in this link

If you feel you would like to revise any subject knowledge prior to the written assessment, there are a wide variety of revision resources online (for example: Google 'GCSE History revision').

Please note:

- The links to example questions provided above are not the questions you will answer on the day of your interview.
- The questions on the day may have a different format from the examples provided. The examples above are only intended to give you an idea of the level of subject knowledge required.
- It is not a requirement of your interview that you review these materials, and we will not ask whether you have reviewed them; they are intended solely as optional resources to help you feel prepared.

Course: Mandarin

As part of your ITT interview, you will complete a written task to assess your subject knowledge. This task will include exam-type questions on various topics within your subject area. Part of the task will also assess your written English proficiency.

To support your preparation for this part of the interview, you may find it helpful to optionally review:

- The content and assessment objectives for your subject at GCSE level (click here).
- Questions from past exam papers for your subject at GCSE level, for example:
 - Question numbered 13 in this paper
 - Question numbered 03 in this paper
 - Question numbered 09 in this paper

If you feel you would like to revise any subject knowledge prior to the written assessment, there are a wide variety of revision resources online (for example: Google 'GCSE Mandarin revision').

Please note:

- The links to example questions provided above are not the questions you will answer on the day of your interview.
- The questions on the day may have a different format from the examples provided. The examples above are only intended to give you an idea of the level of subject knowledge required.
- It is not a requirement of your interview that you review these materials, and we will not ask whether you have reviewed them; they are intended solely as optional resources to help you feel prepared.

Course: Mathematics

As part of your ITT interview, you will complete a written task to assess your subject knowledge. This task will include exam-type questions on various topics within your subject area. Part of the task will also assess your written English proficiency.

To support your preparation for this part of the interview, you may find it helpful to optionally review:

- The content and assessment objectives for your subject at GCSE level (click here)
- Questions from past exam papers for your subject at GCSE level, for example:
 - Questions numbered 2, 5, and 7 in this non-calculator paper
 - Questions numbered 2, 4, and 16 in this calculator paper

If you feel you would like to revise any subject knowledge prior to the written assessment, there are a wide variety of revision resources online (for example: Google 'GCSE Mathematics revision').

Please note:

- The links to example questions provided above are not the questions you will answer on the day of your interview.
- The questions on the day may have a different format from the examples provided. The examples above are only intended to give you an idea of the level of subject knowledge required.
- It is not a requirement of your interview that you review these materials, and we will not ask whether you have reviewed them; they are intended solely as optional resources to help you feel prepared.

Course: Music

As part of your ITT interview, you will complete a written task to assess your subject knowledge. This task will include exam-type questions on various topics within your subject area. Part of the task will also assess your written English proficiency.

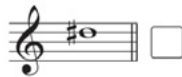

To support your preparation for this part of the interview, you may find it helpful to optionally review:

- The content and assessment objectives for your subject at GCSE level (click here).
- The following example questions:
 1. Name three instruments you would typically find in a piece of Indian Classical Music. [3 marks]

2. Label the sections of the orchestra on the diagram below. [4 marks]

3. Tick one box to show the correct enharmonic equivalent of this note. [1 mark]

4. Write notes from the named intervals. Your note should be higher than the given note. [2 marks]

minor 3rd

compound perfect 5th

If you feel you would like to revise any subject knowledge prior to the written assessment, there are a wide variety of revision resources online (for example: Google 'GCSE Music revision').

Please note:

- The example questions provided above are not the questions you will answer on the day of your interview.
- The questions on the day may have a different format from the examples provided. The examples above are only intended to give you an idea of the level of subject knowledge required.
- It is not a requirement of your interview that you review these materials, and we will not ask whether you have reviewed them; they are intended solely as optional resources to help you feel prepared.

Course: Physical Education

As part of your ITT interview, you will complete a written task to assess your subject knowledge. This task will include exam-type questions on various topics within your subject area. Part of the task will also assess your written English proficiency.

To support your preparation for this part of the interview, you may find it helpful to optionally review:

- The content and assessment objectives for your subject at GCSE level (click here).
- Questions from past exam papers for your subject at GCSE level, for example:
 - Questions numbered 07.1 and 07.2 in this paper
 - Question numbered 09 in this paper
 - Question numbered 12.1 in this paper

If you feel you would like to revise any subject knowledge prior to the written assessment, there are a wide variety of revision resources online (for example: Google 'GCSE Physical Education revision').

Please note:

- The links to example questions provided above are not the questions you will answer on the day of your interview.
- The questions on the day may have a different format from the examples provided. The examples above are only intended to give you an idea of the level of subject knowledge required.
- It is not a requirement of your interview that you review these materials, and we will not ask whether you have reviewed them; they are intended solely as optional resources to help you feel prepared.

Course: Physics

As part of your ITT interview, you will complete a written task to assess your subject knowledge. This task will include exam-type questions on various topics within your subject area. Part of the task will also assess your written English proficiency.

To support your preparation for this part of the interview, you may find it helpful to optionally review:

- The content and assessment objectives for your subject at GCSE level: click here (page 33 onwards for Physics)
- Questions from past exam papers for your subject at GCSE level, for example:
 - Questions numbered 01.2, 01.7, and 04.5 in this paper

If you feel you would like to revise any subject knowledge prior to the written assessment, there are a wide variety of revision resources online (for example: Google 'GCSE Physics revision').

Please note:

- The links to example questions provided above are not the questions you will answer on the day of your interview.
- The questions on the day may have a different format from the examples provided. The examples above are only intended to give you an idea of the level of subject knowledge required.
- It is not a requirement of your interview that you review these materials, and we will not ask whether you have reviewed them; they are intended solely as optional resources to help you feel prepared.

Course: Primary

As part of your ITT interview, you will complete a written task to assess your subject knowledge. This task will include exam-type questions on various topics within your subject area. Part of the task will also assess your written English proficiency.

To support your preparation for this part of the interview, you may find it helpful to optionally review:

- The following example questions:
 - Mathematics:
 - Question numbered 07 in this link
 - Question numbered 10 in this link
 - Questions numbered 1 and 2 in this link

- English:

Identify all the spelling, grammar and punctuation errors in the passage below and write them out on your sheet.

The sun was setting over the beach, casting a warm golden glow on the sand. The waves crashed gently against the shore and the seagulls called out as they flew overhead. "Its so peacefull here," said Sarah, smiling at the horizon. She could feel the cool breeze on her face and the soft sand beneath her feet. As she walked along the waters edge, she noticed a small, colorful shell half-buried in the sand. She bent down to pick it up, marveling at it's intricate patterns. Suddenly she heard a voice behind her. "Hey Sarah! Look what I found!" It was her friend, Mark, holding up a peice of driftwood shaped like a heart. Sarah laughed "Thats amazing! Lets take it home as a souvenier." They continued there walk, enjoying the beauty of the beach and the tranquility of the evening.

Please note:

- The example questions provided above are not the questions you will answer on the day of your interview.
- The questions on the day may have a different format from the examples provided. The examples above are only intended to give you an idea of the level of subject knowledge required.
- It is not a requirement of your interview that you review these materials, and we will not ask whether you have reviewed them; they are intended solely as optional resources to help you feel prepared.

Course: Religious Education

As part of your ITT interview, you will complete a written task to assess your subject knowledge. This task will include exam-type questions on various topics within your subject area. Part of the task will also assess your written English proficiency.

To support your preparation for this part of the interview, you may find it helpful to optionally review:

- The content and assessment objectives for your subject at GCSE level (click here).
- Questions from past exam papers for your subject at GCSE level, for example:
 - Questions numbered 01.2 and 01.5 in this paper
 - Question numbered 01.2 in this paper
 - Questions numbered in 01.2 and 01.4 this paper

If you feel you would like to revise any subject knowledge prior to the written assessment, there are a wide variety of revision resources online (for example: Google 'GCSE Religious Studies revision').

Please note:

- The links to example questions provided above are not the questions you will answer on the day of your interview.
- The questions on the day may have a different format from the examples provided. The examples above are only intended to give you an idea of the level of subject knowledge required.
- It is not a requirement of your interview that you review these materials, and we will not ask whether you have reviewed them; they are intended solely as optional resources to help you feel prepared.

Course: Spanish

As part of your ITT interview, you will complete a written task to assess your subject knowledge. This task will include exam-type questions on various topics within your subject area. Part of the task will also assess your written English proficiency.

To support your preparation for this part of the interview, you may find it helpful to optionally review:

- The content and assessment objectives for your subject at GCSE level (click here).
- Questions from past exam papers for your subject at GCSE level, for example:
 - Question numbered 03 in this paper
 - Question numbered 04.1 in this paper

If you feel you would like to revise any subject knowledge prior to the written assessment, there are a wide variety of revision resources online (for example: Google 'GCSE Spanish revision').

Please note:

- The links to example questions provided above are not the questions you will answer on the day of your interview.
- The questions on the day may have a different format from the examples provided. The examples above are only intended to give you an idea of the level of subject knowledge required.
- It is not a requirement of your interview that you review these materials, and we will not ask whether you have reviewed them; they are intended solely as optional resources to help you feel prepared.

Course: Urdu

As part of your ITT interview, you will complete a written task to assess your subject knowledge. This task will include exam-type questions on various topics within your subject area. Part of the task will also assess your written English proficiency.

To support your preparation for this part of the interview, you may find it helpful to optionally review:

- The content and assessment objectives for your subject at GCSE level (click here).
- Questions from past exam papers for your subject at GCSE level, for example:
 - Question numbered 03 in this paper
 - Question numbered 10 in this paper

If you feel you would like to revise any subject knowledge prior to the written assessment, there are a wide variety of revision resources online (for example: Google 'GCSE Urdu revision').

Please note:

- The links to example questions provided above are not the questions you will answer on the day of your interview.
- The questions on the day may have a different format from the examples provided. The examples above are only intended to give you an idea of the level of subject knowledge required.
- It is not a requirement of your interview that you review these materials, and we will not ask whether you have reviewed them; they are intended solely as optional resources to help you feel prepared.

